

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

DAILY, EXCEPT SUNDAY.

ROSSER & MCCARTHY,
Proprietors.

TUESDAY EVENING, DEC. 21, 1886.

An anxious public is waiting to see what the "real live newspaper" is going to do about it—that Powderly letter, we mean.

It's extremely doubtful whether Sherman would want the tax taken off of sugar, were he Senator from Louisiana instead of Ohio.

It is wonderful what narrow escapes we make some times. For instance, the fighting editor of the Republican, as luck would have it, was out the other day when we called.

Two Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad handled 4,876 cars of freight in November, 1,420 cars more than in the corresponding month a year ago.

In the Fayette Circuit Court there are four suits pending against the Kentucky Central to recover damages for injuries sustained. The amount asked for is $55,000.

This Republican is a great deal more exercised over artificial gas than the Democrats is over the natural gas. It's easy to guess what's the hurting the poor little "dickie birds" down on the corner.

This excitement in Rowan County is so great that A. W. Young, elected County Attorney at the last August election, has deemed it prudent to resign the office, with a view to leaving the county.—Bourbon News.

In the market reports of the Flemingsburg Republican the fact is noted that "Speaker Carlisle's seat in Congress is to be contested." The editor of the river column is wild at the loss of the item.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

This Cincinnati authorities have closed a ten years' contract with the company at that place for gas at $1.25 per thousand cubic feet. The Telegram has been persistent in its fight against Hickenlooper and his monopoly, and has a right to crow over the victory it has won.

This Republican presumes to advise the Democrats to nominate "Cerro Gordo" Williams for Governor, if they want a man with a war record. When it comes to men with a war record, the Democrats of Kentucky have an army to draw from. All the same, the man who heads the next State ticket is very apt to be a civilian.

Conservators refused, by a vote of 149 to 164, to consider the Morrison tariff bill. This settles it as far as Mr. Morrison is concerned. He has been honest in his fight. If he had looked to his own political advancement instead of the avowed principles of his party, he might now be the Congressman-elect from his district.

PROFESSOR H. K. TAYLOR, of Russellville, Democratic candidate for State Superintendent of Public Instruction, will lecture in the court house, this city, Tuesday, January 4, 1887, on the subject "Kentucky's Problem." Mr. Taylor has charge of Logan College, and made a strong fight for the nomination two years ago.

This opposition to the new revenue law comes mainly from the Bluegrass counties, where high-priced bulls and costly thoroughbreds abound. Under the old law these valuable animals were assessed at about the rates of the scrub stock of the mountain counties. The Bluegrass barons would like to have the old rates continued, but the people outside of the "heaven-favored region" will not stand it.—Covington Commonwealth.

The grand jury of Lewis County is engaged this week in investigating the alleged election frauds in Esculapian precinct. A report was filed last Saturday by the members, stating that they were convinced that there had been some tampering with the ballot box at Esculapian at the late election, but that it had been impossible to get witnesses before them, and asking to be discharged. Judge Cole didn't see it in that light, however, and dismissed them until this week. He instructed them to summon every individual in Esculapian precinct who knew anything about the frauds, and informed them that the matter must be fully investigated.

Big Congregation at Court House.
The court house was crowded last Sunday night. The sermon upon the subject, "The Broad and Narrow Road," was truly a message from God. The large congregation that is in the habit of assembling to hear Rev. R. Barrett felt some disappointment in not hearing Miss Lottie McDaniel sing as advertised. In justice to Miss Lottie, we would say she was hoarse, and could not have done justice to herself under the circumstances. She will sing at Mr. Knoll's concert Wednesday night at the opera house, where all will have the pleasure of hearing her. The concert will be good. Let everybody attend.

Circular to County Judges.

STATE OF KENTUCKY,
OFFICE OF AUDITOR PUBLIC ACCOUNTS, FRANKFORT, December 8, 1886.
To the County Judge—Dear Sir:—Please find enclosed sheets containing the law as to the duties of Supervisors, which you are requested to hand them when they shall come together to consider the Assessors book for your county.

It is most earnestly desired that they should give special attention to the same, and their duties thereunder. A proper performance of these duties is of the highest importance, both to the State and the individual tax-payer. Everybody knows that heretofore the assessments of property have not been found uniform and equal as the law prescribes; that in each county will be found, here and there, a man who has given in his property, as the law has always directed it should be, at its fair cash value, whilst his neighbors were far below any such standard of valuation. Thus this man is made to pay more than his fair proportion of the taxes. It is peculiarly the duty of the Board of Supervisors to closely examine the Assessor's book and to insist, in the interest, by bringing all property to the same standard. The law says that standard is the fair cash value. If this is done, the gross injustice and unfairness, which has heretofore been seen on almost every page of the Assessors' books, will at once disappear. The Treasury will be able to promptly meet all claims against the State, and the rate of taxation be so greatly reduced that the amount of tax, paid by the individual tax-payer, need be no greater than heretofore.

Trusting that you will urge, upon the Board, the necessity of rigid and faithful compliance with the law as a great duty, which they owe in the name of justice and right to the citizens of your county, I am, yours truly, FAYNE HEWITT, Auditor.

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all coughs and colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. Huntington's Scheme.

A recent special from St. Louis says:
"It is stated on what should be high authority, since the information comes from a gentleman that is financially interested, that Mr. C. P. Huntington is negotiating for the control of the Illinois and St. Louis Railroad, and that he will be in possession of the majority of the voting power of the company before the year is out. The agent of Mr. Huntington in this transaction is a prominent St.
Louis business man, who is also one of the largest stockholders of the railroad company, and judging from the willingness of the stockholders that have been seen to sell their holdings, the agent will find no difficulty in securing the property at a fair valuation."

"The total mileage owned and operated by the Illinois and St. Louis Company is only thirty-four miles of main line and eighteen miles of sidings, but it owns altogether the most desirable and extensive terminal grounds of any road centering at East St. Louis; besides, its charter, which was granted in 1841, secures almost unlimited rights and privileges to the company. In fact, the provisions of the franchise are so broad, liberal and comprehensive that it has been compared to letters of marque and reprisal, with the additional advantages of the right to seize what it wants in its own country, with none to dispute its authority. It was granted at a time when the public thought a railroad was an improved turnpike, and that it could not be given too many privileges, but the public knows better now."

"The terminal facilities of the Illinois and St. Louis road on the east bank of the Mississippi include most desirable grounds at Venice, East Carondelet and at two points in East St. Louis, besides the Venice and Carondelet Belt Road, which has a mileage of fifteen miles, and extends from East Carondelet on the north to Venice on the south, crossing the route every railroad centering at East St.
Louis. The eastern terminus of the main line is at Belleville, Ill., fifteen miles out from East St. Louis; besides there are three short taps reaching to coal mines, and, although the concern does not swell in the matter of mileage, it is of immense value and importance in the matter of Mississippi river frontage and charter rights."

"Of course, Mr. Huntington would have no use for it, however valuable it might be, unless the Chesapeake and Ohio could connect with it at Belleville, but the gentleman who gave your correspondent the points of the deal says it is Mr. Huntington's purpose to extend the C. and O. to Belleville either by the purchase of the Louisville, Evansville and St. Louis road and extending it from Mount Vernon to Belleville, or by extending the Illinois and St. Louis Cincinnati or Louisville, but most likely to Cincinnati via a connection with the Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Chicago with a branch road to Louisville."

"The construction of a new road is thought to be the more desirable since the Illinois and St. Louis charter possesses so many advantages. Should Mr.
Huntington secure the Illinois and St.
Louis Company's property, and those on the inside of the scheme have no doubt about it, the purpose of the charter members of the company will be accomplished, for, as a matter of fact, the original scheme was to build the road from East St. Louis to Norfolk, Va., via Cincinnati and along the south bank of the Ohio river to the mouth of the Big Sandy, and thence to destination via practically the same route that is occupied now by the Chesapeake and Ohio.
The projectors of the scheme also mentioned the importance of connecting at Cincinnati with a road that was then (1841) projected to run from Cincinnati to Charleston, S. C., via Knoxville, Tenn., and Augusta, Ga. It would be curious if, after nearly forty years, the dream of the charter members of the St. Clair Railroad Company—for that was its first name—should be realized, and all that is needed to fulfill it is the extension of the Illinois and St. Louis to Cincinnati, for the work of constructing a line up the south bank of the Ohio river from Cincinnati to the Big Sandy, where it will join the Chesapeake and Ohio, is being pushed by Mr. Huntington, while the Cincinnati Southern gives the desired connection with the Southeast."

sound and well."
